THE ROSE BUSH

Written for the Interior Journal by Sarah J. Prior, Livingston, Tenn.

A child sleeps under a rose bush fair,
The dewy boughs perfume the air;
Sweetly it rests and on dream wings flies,
To play with the angels in heaven—
And the young girls by!

A maiden stands by the rose bush fair,
Soft sighs the leaves in the evening air;
And sorrowing thoughts of the past away,
The tears of woe roll down her cheek—
And the young girls by!

Nude and alone stands the rose bush fair,
Whirling are the leaves in the winter air;
Whispered words of the winter's gloom,
And sorrow covers new snow mound—
And the young girls by!

IN A DESPERATE CONDITION. A few nights ago a carriage stopped at the door of Cesino and two ladies and a gentleman alighted and moved slowly up the stairs. A distinguished looking man, evidently in a desperate state of mind, stood back in the corner of the carriage. Two respectably dressed and anxious looking negroes, who had been waiting, stepped forward, and, lifting the master out, carried him slowly into the theatre, won the tenderest and care of women. His legs dragged helplessly along and his head drooped. By easy stages they conveyed him upstairs and into a box, where the two ladies and the other gentleman were already seated. They smiled gently and addressed only to him as he was brought in. Leaving was assisted out of the theatre in the same way, placed in his carriage, where he leaned back helpless again in a corner and was driven away. It was Daniel Manning.—New York Sun.

We hold the upper world to be an unmitigated curse at all times and in every place. The pursuance of it on the Sabbath day adds little to anything to its enormity; but since it is permitted below to run its ruinous and degrading course for six days of the week, we do demand that the schools, those mills of destruction, shall cease grinding one day in seven their grist of disease and misery and crime; shall give us time enough to pray with renewed zeal that God will batten the day when this mother of abomination may be wholly wiped from the earth. [N. Y. Observer]

BUDGENESS IS RESKUED BY A PLUMBER.—A plumber was sent to the house of a wealthy stockbroker to execute some repairs. He was taken by the butler into the dining-room and was beginning his work, when the lady of the house entered. John," said she, with a suspicious glance toward the plumber, "remove the silver from the side-board and lock it up stone." But the mass of lead was in no wise disconcerted. "Tom," said he to his apprentice, who had accompanied him, "take my water and my chain and these clippers home to my master at once. There seems to be but one honest people about this house."

There is a serious depression in the general market in Wayne county, N. Y., and the price of the essential oil has dropped to $1.80 per pound, which is the lowest for 30 years. The cause is overproduction. The supply of peppermint oil is estimated at 200,000 pounds. Where there is less there is sure to be some gain. It will be unusually cheap to have the stomach ache during the coming year.—[Springfield Republican]

When scalding hogs, if the water be too hot, the hair will not come off as readily as if the temperature be lower. Boiling water dries on the skin. A temperature of 160° is warm enough for a young hog, but there are some hogs that require as high as 180°. A slab or smooth surface permits of the work being done in a cleaner manner than when a rough bench or table is used.

George Robinson, a museum manager has offered Mrs. Engel $10,000 for the loan of her husband's remains for one year for the purpose of exhibition.

A Life Romance.

One of the best known men in Nashville owes his life and success to his sweetheart. Hawes born and reared on one of the British Isles, the son of a prosperous banker. When nearly 21 he had a serious difficulty with his father and wasbidden never to darken the doors of his ancestral home. It was late at night when he left the house and wandered along the moor which bordered the family domain. He was prostrated with grief and remorse and determined to take his life. He sat down and took his pistol out. As he reflected he took a photograph of his sweetheart from an inner pocket of his coat and scanned the well known features with eyes filled with tears. Thinking upon her, hope returned and he determined to live for her sake if not for his own. He hastily shoved the weapon in his pocket and started for the railway station. He came to America and drifted to Nashville. He prospered in business and is now a highly respected citizen.

Unfortunately the romance ends here. For years he had no communication with his sweetheart, and the letters that he wrote his sweetheart miscarried, for shortly after he left her family moved to a distant town. He returned home a few years ago and sought out his early love. She was married and three children played about her knees. He has consulted himself with a fair American and considers himself one of the happiest of men. But he has never ceased to thank his stars for the girl who once saved his life; that her influence did prevent him from suicide he frankly stated to one familiar with his life.—[Nashville American.]

—Miss Pauline Brock, principal of Bellwood Seminary at Anchorage, died at Chicago, without she had gone to consult with physicians about her health.

A Pennsylvania court decided that a man who made a subscription to build a church and moved from the community before the house was completed must pay his subscription.

—The Louisville & Nashville and other roads are announcing round-trip passenger excursion rates, allowing choice of nine different ways of returning. The tickets bring passengers back to starting point, instead of merely to a Missouri river point as last year.

—Stammons & Ross bought 1,500 hogs for Louisville prices at $1 to $4.50, to be delivered this week. J. H. West sold to Leaven Bros., Baltimore, 12 fine shipping cattle, weighing 1,500 pounds, at 4 cents. They were extra cattle.—[Lancaster News.]

—Stories of fabulous wealth come from Prescott, Arizona, where the richest gold mines ever known are reported discovered. The ore is said to average $1,000 a ton, and thousands of tons are already in sight. The precious metal clings to the rocks in such abundance that a man's scale off a fortune with a pocket knife in a short time. People are already flocking to the scene of the treasure.

This is a pretty fair illustration of the way our bad excuses for taking a rest:

The Court—"Mr. Clerk, is this Tuesday afternoon?"

Clerk—"Yes, your Honor."

The Court—"Tomorrow is the Turkish Sabbath, Saturday the Hebrew and Sunday the Christian. We adjourn until Monday."

Clerk—"But that is Labor Day; Tuesday is the anniversary of Irish independence and Wednesday of the founding of the German Empire."

The Court—"Then we are closed for the week."

The latest "fad" of Washington society is the "news class." It is a recreation indulged in by a party of young ladies, who meet twice a week. They have a teacher, usually a lady of great information and culture, who reads to them from newspaper and discusses the news of the day, foreign and domestic. Surprises and amazements, and the class asks questions.

There are 200,000 miles of railroad in the United States and it takes five tons of rail road spikes per mile to keep up repairs, which makes an annual consumption of 1,000,000 tons. To this must be added 34 tons per mile for the 12,000 miles of new road which is built annually.—[Chicago Herald.]

"If it is possible," said Paul to the Roman Christians, "as much as both in you, live peaceably with all men." He did not say some, but all men. This may in some cases be a difficult task, and yet we have to do our utmost to follow this direction. The rule, though often violated, is a sound one in Christian ethics.—[N. Y. Independent.]
